TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT

We have experience assisting foreign governments on a host of trade and development matters, including project finance and infrastructure projects, foreign investment law, and legal and regulatory reforms.

In addition to international transactional lawyers, our professionals include alumni of a UN development agency, a non-governmental organization (NGO), and a multilateral organization. As explained more fully in our INFRASTRUCTURE & PROJECT FINANCE White Paper, we have worked extensively with export credit agencies (ECAs), financial institutions, and insurers on a wide range of international financings, from traditional infrastructure projects like energy, port facilities, and manufacturing to innovative asset securitizations. As a result, we have experience at all levels of development, from local healthcare initiatives to major infrastructure projects. Our GOVERNMENT CLIENTS White Paper explains how we assist governments plan and negotiate public-private partnerships in a wide range of sectors and provide project management support throughout the project cycle. We also consult with governments on development strategy and goals, including technology transfer, local business promotion, worker training, and infrastructure enhancement.

We have also participated in numerous training sessions for foreign judges, government officials, and lawyers on a variety of international legal topics including trade law, due process, foreign investment, international dispute resolution, and criminal law. We have also lectured on many international legal topics at The World Bank, Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC), the American Society of International Law (ASIL), the George Washington School of Law, and the International Law Institute (ILI).

Our experience includes:

- Trained officials of the Turkmenistan State Agency for the Management and Use of Hydrocarbon Resources (SAMUHR) under USTDA program
- Advised and represented East African country in international arbitrations
- Advised and represented West African country on foreign investment dispute
- Advised Dominican Republic on trade capacity building
- Advised Barbados on trade capacity building

- Trained Ghanaian, Tanzanian, and Nigerian delegation on foreign investment subjects under the auspices of the International Law Institute
- Advised MOFTEC (now MOFCOM) and SETC officials in the Peoples Republic of China on trade revisions related to WTO accession under Asian Development Bank consultancy
- Trained delegation from several CARICOM countries on WTO law under OAS consultancy
- Trained Egyptian and PRC officials on administering trade remedy regime under the auspices of the U.S. Dept. of Commerce and the International Law Institute
- Write and comment extensively on Africa, Central Asia, the Middle East, Asia, and other regions for major U.S. newspapers as well as on national television and radio programs
